Airline Chatter
by Terry Love

Azul, the third largest airline in Brazil, ordered 6 Airbus A-330s and 5 Airbus A-350s for deliveries beginning in 2017. These aircraft will be utilized for routes into the US.

Shandong Airlines has ordered 50 Boeing 737-800s through the Chinese Communist Government. Value of the deal is $4.6 Billion.

Aeroflot, the Russian airline, now has 100 airbus A-320s in their fleet. Boeing delivered the 75th Boeing 747 to Lufthansa in May. Lufthansa has one more on order. Lufthansa received their first 747 in 1970 - 44 years ago !!

Pan American is back ! !A holding company purchased the rights to the name and logo of old Pan Am.They are leasing Boeing 737-800s.

Delta Airlines will begin service to Zurich, Switzerland and Rome, Italy year round beginning on June 16.

Odyssey Airlines is a new airline just getting organized now. It will be for business travelers. They are leasing 10 Bombardier C series airliners that have the range to fly London to New York. It holds 40 passengers.

Emirates Airlines and Etihad Airlines are launching a new service. It is Premium Class. There are actual bedrooms in the first class section of various airliners. It contains bedroom doors, a double bed, flat screen TV, and a bathroom. They are in a "luxury race" with Qatar Airlines, the only 5 star airline in the world. They are planning an upgrade from this Premium Class. It is called Residence Service. This has more floor space than Premium Class. It includes a double bed, bathroom, lounge area, and a butler - not a Flight Attendant. This will be available only on the Airbus A-380. Fare from London to Abu Dhabi is $20,000 one way. A private jet would cost close to $100,000.

Qatar Airlines launched on May 15, a new business class service to London using Airbus A-319s. Instead of having 100 seats, it holds 40.

Ryan Air, the largest low cost carrier in Europe, will expand with flights to the US by 2019. They are based in Ireland. (Shades of Freddie Laker).

China Southern Airlines, Asia's largest airline by passengers carried, ordered, via the Chinese Communist Government, 80 more airbus A-320s for $2.3 Billion. China Southern also ordered 70 Airbus A-320s in March. They will be built at the Airbus factory in China.

NORTHWEST AIRLINES FREIGHTERS
by Terry Love

After the 2008 merger between Delta Airlines and Northwest Airlines, Delta, as the surviving airline, decided to retire all of the Boeing 747-200s in the Northwest fleet, including the freighters. NWA had 12 freighters with swing-up noses.

The last freighter flight was on December 19, 2009 as the 747 freighter touched down at Chicago from Osaka, Japan with a full load of 75 tons of freight. It was Boeing 747-251F, N632NW. The data on some of the NWA freighters are as follows:

N number	MSN	Hours	Cycles
N623NW	21705	103,117	18,171
N624NW	21706	106,418	19,109
N631NW	23111	99,246	18,118
N632NW	25112	93,928	14,625
N939NW	23887	80,975	17,442
N640NW	23888	80,466	17,267
N643NW	22245	91,392	22,176
N644NW	24177	76,406	14,122

Most were stored at Marana Air Park in Arizona. The above 8 freighters retired in December of 2009. Another 4 had already been retired by Delta, shortly after the merger, In August of 2010, Delta sold all twelve freighters to Kalitta Air of Ypsilanti, Michigan.

U-2 Dragon Lady
Flew from bases in Pakistan and UK until May 1960 when Francis Gary Powers was shot down by a Russian SAM. Initially aircraft pictured was a U-2A but converted to a "C" in 1968. Delivered to museum in 1982. U-2's are still being used for ISR missions around the globe.

RF-4C Phantom Recon
ID: Aug 1966, 67th Tactical Recon Win (TAC), Mountain Home AFB, ID.
FD: Mar 1972, 155th (ANG), Lincoln, NB

B-36J Peacemaker (This is a huge aircraft, bigger than B-52)
ID: Dec 1953, 7th Bombardment Wing (SAC), Carswell AFB, TX.
FD: Aug 1956, 95th Bombardment Wing (SAC), Biggs AFB, TX.
Known as the "Magnesium Monster" by its pilots, it was the largest production aircraft ever built. These aircraft never dropped a bomb in a wartime situation. With the B-47 and B-52 on the -line these aircraft were withdrawn from service in 1959. If you want to see one of these aircraft fly, watch the movie "Strategic Air Command" starring James Stewart.
